To Get Him the Commissioner Had to Threaten a Cowboy.

It was in 188 that Roosevelt won fame by shooting a grizzly bear that weighed 1800 pounds, under decidedly interesting electromistances in the wilds of Dakota Roosevelt had a ranch out there at that time says the New York Times, and had done some practical ranching. One morning with his most trustworthy cowboy, the millionaire rancher went out to look for bear. As they were riding along quietly the cowboy called Roosevelt s attention to a singular rook formation and the two drew rein and looked at it with interest. While they were gazing the growl of a bear was heard and directly the beast thrust his ugly nose over the top of the rook. The rifles of both man went to their shoulders in an instant but just as the cowboy was about to pull the trigger his employer yelled at him. Here dush you! shouted Roosevelt. "Don't you shoot that bear! That's my bear. I'll shoo you'll you shoot him!"

The cowboy was between Roosevelt and the bear, and while the man had never be fore seen anything in Roosevelt to justify the notion he would shoot a human boing there was something in the tone of the words he uttered that made the cowboy stop and look over his shoulder. The muzzle of Roosevelt's rille was not many feer from the cowloy's eyes. It looked wervugly, and the cowboy's riffe was lowered despite the foot that such action was damyerous, for the bear was alowly approaching hwe rewised shirp, white tooth. Trottuntely for both Roosevelt's aim was good, as it usually is, and the bear was shraightway a place of mean. Then the cowboy explair of to his employer that he had been in such hast's to shoot solely because if he waited the bear might get, the best of both of thom. This made Roosevelt very contrite, and he not only apploadized profusely, but presented the cowboy with a silver knotted whindester rife, a pair of holeste fisted and a pair of cordupy by seeding heart was laked and a pair of cordupy by seeding heart was laked and a pair of cordupy in the seeding heart was Hood's Sarsaparilla and it gave me vitality at once. "Telegraphic Notes.

Diagates to the Lish convention in Chicago were again in session Wednesday. Secretary Sutton read another barch of cubie and domestic despatches which had accumulated during the night. Fuur messages from Bellast were to the effect that the city approved the convention and concluded. "Help us to Independence." Tyrone whret: "Tyrone approves: Hurrah for the Irish volunteers and another Ballimshinch." From Antrim county came this: "Nationalists support convention. Remember Orr." Despatches from Bonegal and Derry were to the same effect. The report of the committee on permanent organization continuing temporarily, the organization was adopted. The amendment to add O'Donovan Hossa to the list of vice presidents was received so coldly that he declined to allow it voted on. On assuming the chalf, as permanent presiding officer, ex-Congressman Finnerty made a fiery speech.

LEOMINSTER, Mass., Sept. 26. A terrific thunder storm passed over this town this morning. Lightning struck the house of W. J. Lewis, entering at the side of the building and tearing off the clapbrards and slace from the roof. It passed through the sleeping room of Mr. Lewis' daughter, nineteen years old, causing plastering to fail over the bed and demoliabing all the furniture. The bolt pped down into the kitchen where it did much other damage. Several cards of matches were burned, but the house did not ignite. Miss Lewis was unconscious when found, but she will recover.
